

...to those who left us before it was time...

Acknowledgements

Hilda Acevedo, Hilda Guzmán, Israel Hidalgo and Miguel Angel Guzmán, for your never-ending love, trust, acceptance and amazing rock-hard support you give me in all my life and in the path I've chosen to walk, for understanding all the time in which I am away. For being firm ground and my home.

To the ones who have made this desire a reality... for having put your hearts and beings into this project, for always nurturing me, for making my love, passion, desire and commitment to what I love doing grow each passing day...

María Cecilia Cuesta, for always being there, present, pushing and pulling, teaching me, living yourself through art... for that huge and amazing heart of yours.

Angelina Del Buey, for walking side by side with me on this process, for the laughter, the stress, the anger, the release, the screams and the love... for all those wondrous moments and ideas.

Marianna Escobedo, for your light and your complete acceptance, for that silent but ever so strong support and understanding, for your laughter... for making me grow as a person, as a friend, as an artist.

Lucía González, for those amazing eyes, for the rejection and the acceptance, for touching me and letting yourself be touched, for teaching me new ways and surprising me each day... for entering.

Cinthia Pérez Navarro, for your tight sphincters, for that little monster who is the sweetest of beings, for what you have shared with me these years, for giving yourself to me... for our beautiful togetherness.

Amira Ramírez, for having become my sister, for always asking and making me see other things, for sharing everything always, for all that we have yet to live... for holding me before falling.

Carolina Tabares, for saying yes, for entering blindly and for making me see how you see, for sharing your vision, an airplane, the cold, the music, the philosophy... for teaching me about the beauty of humility and how to fight.

Jimena Villegas, for your silence, for your tears, for the constant recognition of myself within you, for your words and your constant support, for teaching me about non-judgement... for your grace.

Gonzalo Aguilar, for believing in me and for the amazing gifts you give me always, for understanding and seeing with your heart... for never letting me get off the road.

José Eduardo Espinosa, for your support and love, for sharing your tranquility... for giving us 'the light'.

Víctor Hugo Reyes, for having jumped inside, for teaching me about calm, ease and laughter in the most stressful of situations, for your incredible commitment... for wetting our senses.

To all those who have been a pivotal part of my growth as an artist and as a human being, even though we are far, I feel you near me...

Miguel Anguiano, for this lucky friendship that has gotten us through.

Giulia Carotenuto, for believing in the power of dance and art as much as I do, for sharing your life and your love with me... for being my home away from home.

Mark Haim, for your beautiful friendship and love, for going out of your way to help me and advise me in all aspects of life and dance.

Neil Harris, for making me put things into perspective, stop exaggerating and overreacting, for making me see things as they are... for the amazing love and friendship that you've given me.

Kirsten Johansen, for your laughter and humor, for your honesty... for teaching me about bravery.

Janice Lancaster, for teaching me to see more, to see beyond... for keeping your childhood spirit alive.

Alicia Marván, for your love and support, for the opportunities of growth... for stepping in.

Zap McConnell, for sharing with me your devotion to dance and art... for showing me to give and show myself fully.

Alejandra Medellín, for teaching me the importance of opposing views, for being bluntly truthful and honest... for stepping out.

Amy Morrow, for your prayers, for believing, for your love.

Katherine Partington, for teaching me never to yield and go after what I want... for your crazy love.

Scott Putman, for those words who meant a great deal to this project, for your support and love.

Autumn Scoggan, for reading, for cheering me across the screen.

Mary Williford-Shade, for helping me get on my feet and get started.

Jason Akira Somma, for mirroring yourself in me, for speaking out together... for teaching me to believe.

Claudio Valdés Kuti, for everything you taught me, for the love that you give me even today... for letting go.

Jesse Zaritt, for being a teacher, a guide and most of all a friend, golden vessel, for sharing with me the fullness of dance, the love for our craft, your passion and drive, for the silence, the quietness, the time... for your friendship, love and deep, constant belief.

Itzia Zerón, for teaching me how great theatre and art are, for teaching me that they can be a way of life, that they can save your life... for your friendship and your love.

To those who always stood and continue to stand beside me, whose words and love keep me going...

Pedro Beiro, for never giving up on me, for your guidance and love... for teaching me to never settle.

Andrea Bejarano, for your support, your trust, your vibes, for believing in me... for your love.

Victor Blanco, for believing in me and supporting me, for opening up to me and for letting me open up to you... for this very rare and beautiful friendship.

Kiika Brash, for reminding me what we can do, for your words in the time of need... for speaking about lighting paths and making me a tiny light in yours.

Denisse Cárdenas, for the pleasure of sharing our lives and crazy hearts, for the tears, the laughter, the travels, for what we don't know and what we give each other sometimes unbeknownst to ourselves... for our shared insanity.

Francisco Carrera, for giving me wonderful opportunities each time, for worrying about me and for showing me that there are many ways.

Elba Emicente, for believing in me and truly supporting me with the smallest of your actions... for giving me a push when I need it most.

Mauricio Heredia, for believing and pushing me... for your words.

Doménica López, for teaching me in your actions to stand for what I believe... for being there.

Mayra Morales, for believing in me, for guiding me, for embracing me, for the words spoken and all that dialogue held in complete silence... for your wisdom.

Paloma Olán, for the laughter and tears shared, for your trust, for never being afraid or ashamed to show your dreams and fight for them... por la verda' de Dio'.

Yoalli Rodríguez, for giving me the support I needed, for giving me your friendship and your complete acceptance... for giving me this love.

Lourdes Roth, for being there, for seeing me, for understanding me, for giving me peace, for unfathomably being part of who I am, for your time and your wisdom, for running with me... for all the wonderful things we do together.

Paulina Rucarba, for sharing your passion and keeping a fire lit on my own, for your love for dance and art, for the power you know they have in us, for those moments of uncontrolled abandon and madness... for what we give and for what we know exists in our hearts.

Georgina Sosa, for your sweetness, your heart, for making me laugh, for making yourself available, for believing... for helping me stand again.

To the ones who were there with me from the very beginning of this process, guiding me, slapping me, showing me the way. Thank you for standing with me, for loving and supporting me. You are my family and keep me going.

Emilia Ismael, for your beautiful heart, for making me want to give up but always encouraging me not to, for your extreme honesty, for teaching me, for your deep friendship and love... for confronting me and making me learn always.

Ray Eliot Schwartz, for being my teacher, for believing in me, for pushing me hard, for making me try, for giving me everything in your power to make me grow into a dancer and into a better artist, for your eternal friendship and love... for having stayed.
