

I dedicate this to the people I love the most,

Bebster, Wero, Camis and my Treasury,

who put up with me even when I'm annoying.

"Of course it is happening inside your head, Harry, but why on earth should that mean that it is not real?" J.K. Rowling

Summing up all the people that have had an impact in my life in the last five years is not an easy task. Five years is an era, a significant period of time that was marked by amazing people; people who I will be eternally grateful for. These five years have been building up for this moment.

This dissertation and overall my entire major wouldn't have been accomplished without the never ending support of my incredible teachers. Connie, Brita, Rocío, Magdalena, Louisa, and many others, thank you. You made me question everything I read, said and thought; you answered my doubts, and inspired me to find my own responses; you encouraged my projects even when others said they would not result; you cheered for me when things worked out and told me to keep going when things weren't as great; you were always there even when I just needed to talk. And boy, did I have things to talk about. Thank you so so much. I would also like to thank Alejandro for being part of my committee and for his valuable observations.

Next, I have to thank my all my family. I couldn't have asked for better parents; my dad, Miguel who taught me what it means to be passionate about something and that hard work really pays off, he is a true example for me; and Bety, who is the coolest mom ever and never gave me any idea that I couldn't do whatever I wanted to do or be whomever I wanted to be, she has always been my perfect fan. I'm so very thankful for my sisters, Arantza who was my first friend, who knows exactly what to say to make me laugh and who has stayed up with me countless nights, enlightening the room with her colorful imagination and witty remarks; and Camila, who is wise beyond her years, a true fighter and a wonderful and beautiful girl. They keep me so strong and grounded because they are all so full of love, and are my ultimate inspiration for everything.

I would also like to thank my first colleagues and my family away from home, Ana, Sabina, Emilia and Mary Carmen. Thank you for your support, insights, motivation, reality checks, for those endless days and nights reading, writing, and laughing together, thanks for being the first testers of the food I cooked, even if it looked funny. Grazie for being there for me no matter what and for your friendship. May we always be tempted to touch.

If you have stuck by me until this point, then from the bottom of my heart, thank you to you too. All that is left for me to say is that I am grateful for you all. I wouldn't have wanted it any other way. You have contributed to shaping my life and making me who I am today. Thank you because, just as J.K. Rowling wrote, you encouraged me to take those wild things happening in my head and make them real.
